CROCKER P. T. A. NOW A YEAR OLD

Crocker P. T. A. held their regular meeting Thursday evening of last week at their home in the Daly City Theatre building.

This being their first anniversary and also the thirty-third anniversary of the National Congress, the meeting proved entertaining and afforded those present a better understanding of P. T. A. work.

During the brief business session, presided over by President Mrs. Ivy Alxander, some of the interesting things that were acted upon were as follows: A cash donation subscribed to the Boy Scouts. The resolution sent out to all organiaztions by the San Mateo County Fish and Game Protective Association to preserve wild life on the property recently acquired by San Francisco was adopted and promptly returned to the sender. The purchase of a piano was reported, and added much to the enjoyment of the meeting and program. A letter of thanks was received from Mrs. Lohr, thanking the P. T. A. for its recent gift to the dental clinic.

A committee was appointed to assist Mrs. Lohr in organizinz a well baby and pre-natal clinic in the near future. This it was felt would be much appreciated by the people of this community.

Miss V. Roussell, president of the Seventeenth district P. T. A., read a brief history of the activities of Crocker during the past year, at the conclusion congratulating the organization in their accomplishments. Miss Roussell, being a clever writer, read in verse a very lovely outline of the history of the National Congress.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Julia Jordan, Founder's Day chairman, who presented the following program: Soprano solo, rendered by Mrs. Orvilla Pauw, accompanied by her son, Ruhloff Pauw. This was follwed by a violin solo by Fred Millhauser, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Sigrid Millhauser. Both Ruhloff Pauw and Fred Millhauser were students and graduates of Crocker school. Next came the candle-lighting ceremony, the members reading the outstanding accomplishments of the Congress and lighting the candles until the entire thirty-three were lit. Mrs. Sigrid Millhauser next sang, accompanied by Mrs. O. Pauw, violin obligato by Fred Millhauser, dedicating her number to Professor W. J. Savage.

Mayor H. H. Smith favored with his usual jovial spirit and kept the audience in smiles and laughter. In conclusion he thanked Crocker on behalf of the people of Daly City for their work accomplished, and urged the members to continue their good work.

Then came a treat in a brief outline of George Washington, presented by Prof W. J. Savage, who is so very capable and who has a manner of presenting the lives of the country's great men in a very entertaining manner.

Those present then gathered around the table that was beautifully decorated and a generous supply of refreshments were on hand that were daintily and tastefully served.

During the social hour, Mr. Augustien, representing the school board, responded, speaking about the fine condition of the schools of this district.

Mr. Chesney, assistant fire chief, also was successful in getting his audience to laugh with his witty remarks.

Mrs. C. Page, president of Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande P. T. A., then favored with a few remarks that were well received.

Miss Roussell was then asked to give the closing remarks, which she did as only she can do.

Mrs. Jordan then thanked her committee who helped her in the decorations and arrangements, the president in turn thanking her for her efforts.

Five new members were received, and it is the hope of the P. T. A. that they will be of assistance and receive lots of pleasure from their new association. The new members are: Mayor H. H. Smith, Mr. Curry, Mr. Boyle, Mrs. Caine and Mrs. F. Watson.

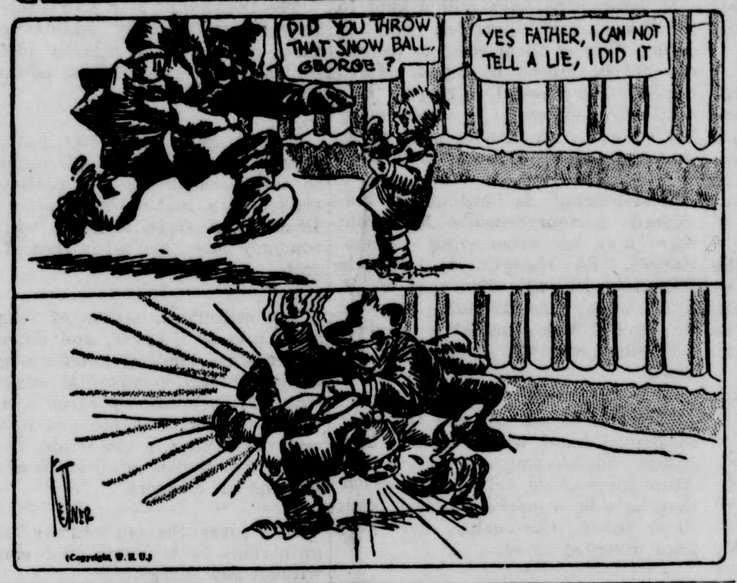
Times Have Changed



FIREMAN DEFINES FIRE PREVENTION

Fire prevention is the subject that just now is receiving most consideration from all fire departments in the United States, and the year 1930 should be Daly City's fire prevention year.

The following information is offered as material upon which short talks on fire prevention may be based. If you are a school teacher, you are requested to address your pupils on the subject weekly, from now until the opening of the summer vacation period. If you are the secretary of an orzanization, you should bring this matter, frequently during the year, to the attenion of your membership.

Fire prevention has been defined as the science of making life and property safe against fire, and as a particular and special function means the elimination of all known causes of fire. Now that we have defined fire prevention, we come to what are called "fire hazards," which are defined as follows: A fire hazard is anything which may cause a fire, or which if fire reaches it will assist in its spread. Fire hazards may be separated into two main classes, the conspicuous or open fire hazard, and the hidden fire hazard. The conspicuous fire hazard is the easiest remedied, such as rubbish left so it is liable to take fire, or in case of fire to spread same; carelessness with the storage of matches, oily or greasy rags, etc.; storage of petroleum products in an unsafe manner or place; dry grass or weeds close to buildings.

One of the greatest known fire hazards is the shingle roof; just waiting for a spark to break out into a flame. These open fire hazards may all be eliminated by proper inspection by fire marshals who have been properly instructed as to what constitutes a fire hazard, and backed up by proper laws governing the same.

Next week "The Hidden Fire Hazard."—Victor Sorelly, Daly City Fire Prevention Committee of San Mateo County Firemen's Association.

"GIANTS AND GRASSHOPPERS" WILL BE THEME OF SERMON

Rev. Charles Woessner, pastor of Calvary Baptist Chapel, 5724 Mission street, announces services for next Sunday as follows: In the morning, "Giants and Grasshoppers" will be the theme of the sermon. Man is one of the two. Why? This challenging question will be dealt with by the pastor in the morning sermon.

In the evening the young people's service will take place. The entire program will be rendered by the "C. N. V.'s." They will have the entire hour of evening worship, beginning at 7:30.

Prayer meeting will take place on Tuesday at 8 p. m. Miss Doris Smith, M. A., will be the guest speaker of the evening. Her topic will be "Why I Want to be a Missionary." Miss Smith holds an A. B. degree from Redlands University, and her M. A. from Columbia University, New York. For nearly two years she held the position of traveling secretary for the National Student Volunteer Movement. In that time she visited over 150 leading colleges and universities throughout the United States. This position has given her a keen insight into what the youth of today are thinking about. Her love for the mission field and her optimistic and spiritual personalty will make her subject and her coming one of the most worth-while hours we can spend.

Calvary Chapel is trying to give to the public and its membership only the best speakers obtainable. Each program is definitely planned to interest and help both young and old. Miss Smith's coming is the beginning of a list of prominent speakers.

P. T. A. OBSERVES FOUNDER'S DAY

President Mrs. C. Page gave a short talk on the significance of this thirty-third birthday of the P. T. A., while the candles were being lighted.

MILLBRAE CROSSING CAUSE OF DEBATE

The San Mateo county board of supervisors appear to be on the eve of a battle with the Southern Pacific railroad over the status of a crossing on Millbrae avenue, Millbrae. The railroad contends that the crossing is a private one and the board of supervisors claims that it is a public thoroughfare.

It is claimed by the supervisors that the crossing has been a public one for nearly 13 years and recently a street was cut through from El Camino Real to the Bayshore highway over this crossing. After this street was cut through, the California Railroad Commission notified the Southern Pacific to see that the crossing was properly protected. The railroad, it seems, got into communication with the county and somehow the communication was filed and no action ever taken. Meanwhile the railroad commission began pressing the Southern Pacific to safeguard the crossing.

Last Monday in a communication to the supervisors the railroad called the crossing a private one and made the threat to close it unless the county went to the railroad commission and asked permission to have it declared a public crossing, and consequently assume the cost of protective devices. This the county refused to do, and warns the railroad that the crossing shall be kept open.

The railroad may force the issue by hailing the county before the commission and having the status of the crossing definitely settled. The supervisors declared Monday that they are prepared to fight any attempt on the part of the railroad to dodge paying for protective devices at the intersection.

AN ANCHOR OF THE SOUL PRESBYTERIAN THEME

In a world of so many conflicting ideas, how is the average man to know what is really true? With so many different religions, many of them contradicting each other, how can the ordinary mortal find out the truth? But there is no need to be discouraged, for these problems have all been worked out hundreds of years ago. The Apostle Paul says, "We have an anchor of the soul." We need not drift about. Just an anchor is a mighty good thing to have in a stormy sea, so there is an anchor for the soul. There is a rock of ages. There is truth which is eternal and dependable. This will be the topic which the pastor of the Presbyterian church will discuss on Sunday evening at 7:45. The church is located at Evergreen and Hanover.

The young people's meeting begins at 6:45. A Bible baseball game will be enjoyed at this meeting Sunday. The young people are divided into sides and their skill in hadling their Bible determines the score. This is wonderful for young people to learn the Bible and learn it with all the zest of a baseball game.

MAN "TAKEN FOR A RIDE" NEAR DEATH IN HOSPITAL

Clifford Holland, aged 24, of Hayward, who declared he was "taken for a ride" by three convict gunmen last Monday night, shot and left to die on the Salada Beach road, is near death in St. Luke's hospital, San Francisco. Search of the underworld haunts has failed to reveal three gunmen named by the Hayward man as his assailants, Edward Calhoun, Joe Shan and a man named Garcia. Calhoun fired all three shots, according to Holland.

BOARD CONSIDERS WATER PROBLEM

The board of supervisors of San Mateo county, in the interests of the county, will officially protest the granting of an application now on file with the Division of Water Resources, Department of Public Works, Sacramento, for a permit to appropriate water from Peter, State and Oil creeks, tributary to the Pescadero creek, in San Mateo county. The applications have been made by Edith Van Antwerp and Cyril B. Williams, Agent, of San Francisco.

In a communication sent to the supervisors, George E. Dunn, Half Moon Bay and Pescadero publisher, called the board's attention to the matter and claimed that the acquisition of the water asked for from the three creeks would seriously interfere with the supply in the Pescadero creek, which flows through the beautiful Memorial Park, and that in a short time this stream would be dried up. Publisher Dunn was present at the meeting and said he understood the plans of the applicants was to dam up the water in the three tributaries and run the water over the hills into Santa Claar county.

County Fire Warden Bert L. Werder was present at the meeting and informed the board that if the permit is obtained to take the water out of these three tributaries at the head of Pescadero Creek that it would result in the complete drying up of the latter stream.

The board referred he matter to District Attorney Franklin Swart to draw up the necessary resolution of protest to be filed with the Department of Water Resources at Sacramento.

The board continued the hearing in the matter of the proposed formation of the North Fair Oaks sewer district until March 3.

A petition of D. E. and J. T. O'Keefe, owners of land in Menalto Park, asking that proceedings be initiated for street, sidewalk and sewer improvements in the tract, was read, and the board instructed County Surveyor George A. Kneese to prepare the necessary plans and specifications for the work.

Frank Bryant, who was given the contract at the last meeting for the grading of the new Memorial Park road, was granted permission to close the road between the Alpine creek bridge and the top of the Haskins hill while construction work is in progress.

County Surveyor Kneese was instructed to make a survey and submit an estimate of the cost of constructing another dam across the Pescadero creek in Memorial Park below the present dam in the Boy Scout camp.

The recommendation of the County Social Service Commission for aid of several aged needy persons in the county, under the new old-age pension act, was approved by the board. State orphan aid, recommended by the commission, was also granted in the case of several worthy persons.

County Architect W. H. Toepke submitted a report showing that a new wing for the Community hospital at Beresford, with room for 135 beds and an isolation ward with 13 beds, will cost approximately $155,550. An application from Clyde McGovern of San Mateo, for the position of state traffic officer in the county, was ordered placed on file.

SIDELIGHTS

Throwing one well aimed brick would seem an easy method of obtaining a winter's keep. And so it proved for Tom McGee, of Atlanta, who heaved a brick through a store window in the hope of being sent to jail where he would have free food and shelter. A judge kindly arranged that his hope might be realized.

It seems that boys still delight in the story of William Tell and the apple. One of them tried to reenact the Swiss legend in Lynn, Mass., when Alfred Howard, 8, playing Tell, shot Joe Murphy, 7, representing Tell's son, in the chin instead of hitting the apple on the latter's head.

Wife-beating is ordinarily considered a reprehensible habit, but there may be extenuating circumstances. So thought a judge in Evanston, Ill., who dismissed W. H. King, whose uncontrollable urge to "swing on" Mrs. King when she dyed her hair green was considered justified.

Marrying seems to have become a confirmed habit with Mr. and Mrs. Albert McKiernan, of Peoria, Ill. Although each is only 26 years old, they have been married to each other three times. Obviously, they have been divorced twice.

Nothing would appear more unseemly than raising high jinks in a graveyard. So thought police at Peabody, Mass., who raided a cemetery chapel where they found a night club in full swing. Much beer was confiscated and 36 persons were taken to jail.

Mexican bandits who had killed several defenceless railroad passengers were rounded up and shot without being given a chance to go crazy or receive any ministrations from sob sisters. But Mexico is a primitive country, not up on the new criminology.

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

The Division of Fish and Game has recently made many additiitions to their collections of moving pictures for the express purpose of educating the public.

It is not generally known, but these pictures are loaned by the Commission to clubs, schools, or any responsible organization, and if the occasion justifies it, a state lecturer will accompany them, and all is free of any cost.

The collection consists of fifty or sixty sets or subjects, and embraces fish culture, angling, hatchery, game farm operation, commercial canneries, water fowl, predatory birds and animals, deer, elk and antelope, forestry and vacationing in the wilds, in fact exhaustive studies in all kinds of wild life and out of doors.

This gives the opportunity to all gatherings to entertain and educate without any charge.

A projecting machine and operator must be supplied by the borrower, and different sets of pictures may be borrowed from time to time.

Application should be made to Division of Fish and Game, Russ building, San Francisco, for complete list and details, or the writer of this column may be reached by letter in care of the Daly City Record.

Knowledge of this subject gained from books cannot compare with that of seeing wild life in action and in their natural environment.

The living subject where nature placed it gives a fascinating entertainment, and parent-teacher associations, school gatherings and the like should embrace this chance of educating and entertaining at the expense of the state of California.

SAN MATEO IS FORTY-FIFTH COUNTY IN SCHOOL WEALTH

San Mateo county, with a total of $15,694 in wealth for every boy and girl attending her schools, ranges forty-fifth among the fifty-eight counties of California in true wealth per pupil. Walter E. Morgan, chief of the bureau of research and statistics in the State Department of Education, made this computation in a report handed to Governor Young.

In estimating the amount of property represented by each elementary pupil, Morgan took into consideration the ratio between the actual value and the value placed upon the property by county assessors. This differs with different counties.

The total number of pupils in aveage daily attendance is then used to figure out the true wealth per pupil.

Alpine county, California's "baby county," leads the entire state in wealth per pupil, with a total of $85,505 for each of the thirteen children enrolled in that county's one school. Placer county stood at the bottom of the list, with $10,766 per pupil. Los Angeles county, which has the largest school enrollment of any county in California, stood eleventh in the "true wealth" list, with an average of $27,828 per pupil. San Francisco ranked fourth, with $37,200, and Alameda county thirteenth, with $20,687.

NEW HEARING ON WESTERN PACIFIC APPLICATION SET

The hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the amended application of the Western Pacific Railroad for permission to construct a line from San Francisco to Niles, via Redwood City, with a bridge across the bay, has been postponed from March 13 to April 1. Opponents of the application asked for more time in which to assemble data. The leading opponent is the Southern Pacific Railroad.

The Western Pacific plans to build a line thirty miles long which will bring the road into San Francisco over its own rails and make that city the actual Pacific coast terminal. The estimated cost of the work is $8,000,000.

A bobbed-haired waitress, very much out of sorts, sailed haughtily to the table at which sat a grouchy customer. She slammed down the cutlery, snatched a napkin from the pile and tossed in front of him, then, striking a furious pose, snapped: "What 'ch want?"

"A couple of eggs," growled the customer.

"How 'ju want 'em?"

"Just like you are."

What this Doctor did for Humanity

As a young man the late Dr. R. V. Pierce, practiced medicine in Pennsylvania and was known far and near for his great success in alleviating disease. Finally he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and put up in ready-to-use form, his GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY, the well known tonic for the blood. This strength builder is made from a formula which Dr. Pierce found most effective when in private practice.

It aids digestion, acts as a tonic and enriches the blood—clears away pimples and annoying eruptions and tends to keep the complexion fresh and clear.

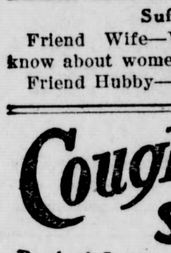
This Little Girl Got Well Quick



"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Turnage, 217 Cadwalder St., San Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her.

"Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

HIGH-UP TALK

"I hope I'm not interrupting," said the Fairy Queen, as she saw the Sun and Moon talking together.

"You could never interrupt," said Mr. Moon, making a low bow.

"You're always a pleasure."

"You are indeed," said Mr. Sun. "I'm delighted to see you and agree with my old friend, Mr. Moon."

"Well, I never knew you were such friends before," laughed the Fairy Queen.

"We don't see so much of each other, it is true," said Mr. Moon. "That's because our working hours are different.

"Our sleeping ones are too for that matter. But just the same, we're great friends," he ended.

"We are, we certainly are," said Mr. Sun.

"Won't you continue to have your talk?" asked the Fairy Queen. She had been taking a ride that afternoon in her new airplane, which was made out of a white and silver cloud.

She was resting high in the air now that Mr. Sun and Mr. Moon were talking, and she stayed just out in between where they both were.

"We'll be glad to," said Mr. Moon, "if you will join in now and again.

"We'd like to hear your opinion upon so many things."

"Yes, everything under the sun and moon as they say," said Mr. Sun.

"Why do they say that to begin with?" asked Mr. Moon. "Are things under the sun and moon so important?"

"It does seem strange," said Mr. Sun. "And they never seem to say:

"'Let's talk about everything that's just as high up as the sun and moon.'"

"No, they want to talk about the things that are under us," said Mr. Moon.

"We Are, We Certainly Are."

"Perhaps," he added, "the Fairy Queen can explain."

"Yes, perhaps she can tell us," said Mr. Sun.

"It's this way," said the Fairy Queen.

"Which way?" asked Mr. Moon, "do you mean the milky way?"

"Perhaps you mean the sunny path?" asked Mr. Sun.

"No," said the Fairy Queen, "I simply wanted to explain to you what people meant by saying they were going to talk of everything under the sun and moon."

"We're anxious to hear," said Mr. Moon.

"I'm especially anxious," said Mr. Sun, "to find out what it means before I go to bed.

"I am becoming so sleepy now."

"It means that people have to talk about things under the sun and moon because they don't know of things up in the sky so well.

They know about the earth where they are living, and about animals, flowers, trees and each other.

"So when they talk they like to hear all the news of the things and creatures under the sun and moon—because they're so familiar with them.

"But they love the sun and moon, too, for they are so unhappy when they don't see Mr. Sun in the morning and Mr. Moon in the evening."

But Mr. Sun was growing very sleepy.

"I must go to bed," said he. "Thanks for calling on me, Mr. Moon. And I'm ever so glad to have seen you, Fairy Queen.

"Good-night, that is good-morning to you, Mr. Moon. For nighttime is your daytime."

"So it is," agreed Mr. Moon. "And good-night to you, for it's bedtime for you and all the creatures under you and under me."

And the Fairy Queen flew back to tell the fairies of her talk with the sun and the moon.

How much she had enjoyed it.

Taking No Risks

"Now, Bobby, go and kiss your little sweetheart and make it up," said Bobby's mother.

"No, I won't!"

"Go and tell her how much you love her and how sorry you are."

"No, I won't! Pa says he got into a breach of promise case by tellin' a girl that, and had to marry the old thing. No risks for me, thank you."

That's Settled

Aunty was entertaining her two nephews. Putting out two pieces of cake, one was larger than the other, she said: "Now, I want to see which of you has better manners."

"Oh, Jimmy has!" said Johnny, as he grabbed the big piece.

FRENCH PASTRY DAINTIES

The French pastry which we all admire so much and pay such prices for, may be made at home at little expense, and be just as attractive as one has time and taste to give to it.

Cake Pastry Foundation.—Take three eggs well beaten in a bowl, set over hot water and beat lightly, add one-half cupful of sugar and beat until the mixture becomes fluffy, then add one-third of a cupful of melted butter, three-fourths cupful of pastry flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix well, add vanilla or other flavoring. Bake in a sheet and cut into shapes while warm.

Neapolitan Squares.—Cut the above cake into two-inch squares. Spread half the squares with apricot jam, currant jelly, orange marmalade, or any cake filling one likes. Cover with the other squares and press together between boards until firmly joined. Now spread the sides with jelly beaten to a paste with a few drops of water and dip each in coconut finely chopped. Ice the tops with a thick chocolate icing and in the center place a halved maraschino cherry cut-side down; add stem and leaves of citron or a white or green icing.

Almond Slices.—Spread the entire sheet of cake with a tart jelly or jam beaten to a paste. Now cut into strips three or four inches long and one and one-half inches wide, spread the sides with jelly. Top each with a heavy meringue, using two egg whites and eight tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of almond extract. Arrange over the top with a pastry tube, sprinkle with powdered sugar and top with shredded almonds. Place in a slow oven and brown lightly.

Fruit Pastries.—Use the cake foundation, cut into squares, rounds or strips as desired, put together with a cream custard, orange or lemon, cover with jelly and icing. On top of each place a halved pear or peach which has been cooked until transparent in a heavy sirup, made from one cupful of the fruit juice and three-fourths cupful of sugar, then cooled. While cooling baste the fruit with the sirup to make a nice glaze. After the fruit has been arranged pipe a border of whipped cream around and on the sides. Flavor and sweeten the cream.

FISH DISHES

In many places fish is so plentiful that it is the cheapest of food. Even where it is shipped in it should be used as freely as the purse will allow, for fish is easily digested and a most wholesome food.

There are so many fresh water lakes and streams that all one needs is a fish and line with a little patience to bring home a meal.

Where fresh fish are plentiful it is wise to provide for the time of famine, that is in the winter, when they cannot be caught. It is a most simple process to can fish or pickle them and one has then a jar to serve as chowder, or in various other ways during the winter season.

Baked Stuffed Fish.—The stuffing of fish may be varied in many ways, adding to its flavor and making it more appetizing. The following is one that will be liked: Take one cupful of melted butter, one-half cupful each of rolled cracker crumbs and bread crumbs, salt, onion juice, pepper, and two tablespoonfuls of chopped sour pickle. Stuff the fish, or if in fillets, put a layer of stuffing between slices and bake. Garnish with pickled onions and parsley.

Jellied Fish.—Cook two pounds of fish and remove all the bones and skin. Chop fine and add slowly one-fourth cupful of the fish broth, one teaspoonful of salt, the juice of three lemons, one tablespoonful of grated onion, two dozen blanched and chopped almonds and a dash of cayenne. Add two tablespoonfuls of gelatin to one-fourth cupful of water and dissolve in the hot broth, mix with the other ingredients and fill the mold. Chill, serve in a nest of crisp lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Mackerel Roe.—Scald the roe in acidulated water, drain and wipe dry, being careful not to break them. Season with salt, chopped parsley and onion juice. Flour well, dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve on a folded napkin with fried parsley and slices of lemon for garnish.

Codfish Cakes.—Take two cupfuls each of shredded codfish and mashed potatoes, one minced onion, one egg, one-half of a green pepper chopped, one-fourth pound of cooked, shredded codfish, two tablespoonfuls of butter and two tablespoonfuls of cream. Make into flat cakes and fry in deep fat or saute in butter.

Farms Being Placed on Big-Scale Production

Some idea of the trend toward large scale, efficient work on the farms of the country is to be found in the case of the wheat farmer. In Montana, as an example, there were estimated to be 35,000 men engaged in raising wheat during the period between 1915 and 1917. Many of these men were working half sections or smaller farms. This year, by contrast, it is estimated that there are not more than 14,000 wheat farmers, yet these comparatively few workers are handling a greater acreage and with greater efficiency than the larger number only a little over a decade ago.

One of the implements used is a new type of cultivator, called a duckfoot with a 16-horse team, is able to handle 1,000 acres a year.

The use of tractors, of combination reapers and thrashers and other modern equipment is tending to place the farmer on a big scale production basis which rivals the growth of the industries of the country.—Washington Star.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Curiosity's Uses

Curiosity came into the world when the first man looked at the stars or had the original primordial stomach ache. It is the first sign that the lately born child is something more than an impersonal scrap of appetite. It can survive the adventures of youth and the disillusion of later years and give old age enough to do to keep it out of mischief and misery. It deserves a good word even though it needs none.

THINK THIS OVER

It is a serious reflection upon the common sense of the American people that they fuss and fume over relatively unimportant things, while almost ignoring the one real national menace—death by motor accidents.

Automobile accidents resulted in more than 30,000 deaths in the United States last year, an increase of nearly 13 per cent over 1928. If the present indifference to this terrible slaughter continues, 1930 will see a still greater number of victims.

We get excited over prohibition and the tariff, we work ourselves into a frenzy over politics; we are impressed with the rantings of professional reformers and do-gooders; we lavish sympathy on a murderer who justly pays his debt on the "hot seat;" we are greatly perturbed over the stock market—and a thousand and one other lelatively trivial matters agitate us greatly.

But if we ever think of the 30,000 killed and 800,000 injured in automobile accidents each year, we only shrug our shoulders and say, "Isn't it too bad?"

MARTHA WASHINGTON

The annual recurrence of Washington's Birthday on February 22 is always the inspiration of many editorials and articles on the "father of his country." Occasionally some mention is made of Martha Washington, his devoted wife, but her personality is not as well known as it deserves to be.

Mrs. Washington was the daughter of Col. Dandridge, a planter of New Kent county, Virginia, and was the widow of Danied Parke Custis at the time of her marriage to Washington on January 6, 1759, being the mother of four children by her first husband.

Two of her children died in infancy, the others being Martha Parke Custis and Col. John Parke Custis, whose granddaughter became the wife of General Robert E. Lee, famed Confederate leader.

Mrs. Washington was short and plump, with hazel eyes and dark hair, her stature being in marked contrast with that of General Washington, who was six feet two inches in height.

She inherited considerable wealth from her first husband and this added to General Washington's fortune made them one of the wealthiest couples in America at the time, their estate being valued at more than $5,000,000.

George and Martha Washington had no children. Their married life extended over a period of more than 40 years, during which in peace and war, as well as in the exacting duties of a President's wife, she was his faithful companion and helpmeet.

SPEED IN FALLING

If one should fall from an airplane or balloon at a height however great, his velocity would never exceed 118 miles an hour at any point before reaching the earth, according to the conclusions of the Army Air Service as a result of experiments made with dummies.

This is contrary to the belief formerly held by most people that a body continually increased its speed when falling from any distance. The fact is that this rapid increase of speed in the case of a body similar to that of a man continues only until it has fallen about 1,200 feet, after which it maintains a constant rate, due to the resistance of the air.

This discovery also explodes the theory that a person falling from a great height would lose consciousness and perhaps be dead before striking the ground, for it is well known that aviators have driven their planes at speeds of more than 350 miles an hour on a straightaway course, and at much greater velocities when diving to make an "outside loop."

The knowledge that falling speed is limited is not of much practical benefit to one who falls from a great height, however, for the 118 miles an hour possible of attainment is quite sufficient to effectively put him out of business when he strikes the earth.

PUBLIC IS AIR SHY

Although the United States government is spending about 30 million dollars a year in aid of commercial flying, the aviation industry is in serious difficulties, according to Postmaster General Brown.

Passenger air lines carried a paying load of only 16 to 40 per cent of their capacity last year, and operating losses have been so great, says Mr. Brown, that "the very life of the passenger transport industry is in the balance."

He further points out that if the air lines should collapse through lack of public support the millions which the government has contributed, as well as much of the money invested by the public, would be lost.

The trouble appears to be that air lines have been extended too rapidly. Only a small percentage of the public will as yet trust themselves to the airplane for long flights. Every airplane disaster which is spread across the front pages of newspapers tends to make people afraid of this form of transport..tion.

The public generally will become "air-minded" only when convinced that air lines assure safety as well as speed.

KISSING IS AWFUL

Every so often some learned doctor —whose best friends, we suspect, won't tell him what his trouble is— has his fling at taking the joy out of life by issuing solemn warnings against the perils of kissing.

Now comes one Dr. O'Leary, of Minnesota, who declares, as many have done before him, that kissing is likely to spread a wide variety of disease germs, ranging from tuberculosis to housemaid's knee. Says he: "Even the healthiest are liable to disease from germ infection through careless osculation."

But, like others of the killjoy tribe, the good doctor doesn't know just what can be done about it. In spite of all warnings, the ancient art of kissing still flourishes. It is even suspected that in certain quarters it is on the increase.

Yet few will deny that kissing has its dangers. One of which, in certain cases, is that of getting caught.

TAFT AND HUGHES

This month saw the end of the long and useful public career of William Howard Taft, the only man who has ever occupied in turn the offices of President and Chief Justice of the United States. Ill health caused him to resign from the latter office at the age of 72, after nearly half a century of almost continuous public service.

Among the positions held by him during this long period were those of solicitor-general of the United States, federal circuit judge, president of the Philippine Commission, first civil governor of the Philippines, secretary of war, acting provisional governor of Cuba, President of the United States and finally chief justice.

Charles Evans Hughes, who has been appointed chief justice, is likewise one of the most distinguished of living Americans, and is now 67 years of age. He first became nationally prominent as counsel for the Armstrong insurance investigating commission of the New York legislature in 1905.

He served two terms as governor of New York; was an associate justice of the United States supreme court, resigning to accept the Republican nomination for President in 1912, when he was defeated by Woodrow Wilson. He was secretary of state under Harding and Coolidge for four years, and chairman of the international conference on limitation of armaments held in Washington in 1921. He has served as a justice of the permanent court of international justice and has taken part in numerous international conferences in the interest of peace.

Both outgoing and incoming chief justices have the confidence and esteem of their fellow countrymen in the very highest degree, and both have been among the outstanding figures of their time in world affairs.

BAY SHORE ROUTE FOR BUS LINES PROTESTED

State Railroad Commissioner Clyde M. Seavey, at San Francisco, heard protests to a proposal of the Pacific Auto Stages, Inc., and the Peninsula Rapid Transit company to re-route their bus lines down the Bayshore highway to enable a more frequent service to Mills field and to give a more adequate service between Burlingame and San Francisco.

Protests were made by the Market street railroad and the Bayshore Auto Stages company, now holding a permit to operate on the Bayshore highway.

In the application of the Pacific Auto Stages Company, Inc., they propose a 15 minute service between 6:30 a. m. and 9:00 p. m. and an alternating service on the El Camino Real.

Representatives of a number of Peninsula cities and chambers of commerce attended the hearing.

The Burlingame chamber of commerce is on record endorsing the switch.

Commissioner Seavey indicated that he would take the matter under advisement.

When Mrs. J. C. Prother, of Southend, Eng., told a judge she had 18 children her husband disputed the statement, declaring there were only 12.

The exact center of the Great Divide has been determined to be Reno.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

Famous last words: "You wouldn't be jealous of a poor little working girl, would you?"

The Crippled Lady of Peribonka

—By—

(©, 1929, Doubleday Doran & Co., Inc.)

STORY FROM THE START

Introducing some of the people of the pretty little French-Canadian village of Peribonka, particularly the Crippled Lady, idol of the simple inhabitants. Paul Kirke is a descendant of a sister of Molly Brant, sister of Joseph Brant, great Indian chief. He has inherited many Indian characteristics. His father is a powerful New York financier. Paul marries Claire Durand, daughter of his father's partner. He is in charge of engineering work near Peribonka.

Paul sat at his desk after Derwent had gone. From his chair he could look through another window to a clean and unbroken sweep of country where the forest had stood, and where now were rows of cottages built for the men whose wives and families had come with them to the workings. He could see Lucy-Belle Derwent's home, and not far from it the cottage in which Carla Haldan and her mother lived. He had often felt an emptiness of heart and a great longing when his eyes rested upon these half hundred homes of the women whose love and loyalty had urged them to follow their husbands' fortunes. His wife was not among them. Only twice in three years had she come up to what she had called "these horrible woods," and then she had departed after a day or two. Her picture was on his desk. He knew she was beautiful, in a vivid, golden way. But her beauty had never touched him deeply. It had been for him like a beauty of a flower made by a master craftsman from paper or glass, without the rare, sweet perfume which should have been a part of it, and for which he had yearned all his life. He had thought of her as a lovely bird in a gilded cage—and the cage was the palace which he called his home. It was a senseless thought, for the cage did not hold her often. She was in Europe now. Last year it was Egypt. Next year it would be some other far-away place.

He had been true to the woman on his desk, just as he knew she was true to him, and whatever he had wanted in woman he tried to build up about her. He wanted to love her. He did love the ideal which he created of her, a kind of dream woman, whom he endowed with a great love for himself and placed in one of the cottages which he could see from his office window.

He did not realize that during recent months he had clothed this ideal a little at a time in what he found in Carla Haldan.

Yesterday he had received a letter from Paris. It was friendly and full of interest, quite a long letter, but without a line in it to say she wanted him or was looking forward to the time when she would see him again. She must have written it in her dressing room, with her hair down, for one of the long, fine-spun golden filaments had got into the letter somehow, and at first he wanted to believe she had put it there. Then he recalled that previous to this letter it had been five weeks since she had communicated with him. So there was no sentiment about it. Just accident. With Carla it was different. Flowers which she cut from her garden were always on his desk. A vase of gorgeous autumn nasturtiums was there now. Usually Carla sent them over by one of her school children, but occasionally she brought them herself. She made no display of the act, nor was there a motive in it, except the one inspired by kindness. Paul knew she would have done the same thing if his wife had been there. The two had met. Carla had seemed to bear in her heart a warm and tender feeling for the woman to whose husband she brought flowers. A curious fact had come out between them. They were the same age—twenty-five—both born on the same day. Funny, Paul had thought, how much two women could learn from each other in a short time.

Paul was looking at the Haldan cottage as he sat thinking, and saw Carla come out into the rain and turn down the cinder path toward his office. In a little while he knew she was on her way to visit him. He stood up to watch the slim figure in its close-fitting silken raincoat and hood. He knew how she would come in through his door, hiding her grief as much as she could from the world, that its gloom might not oppress or embarrass others. To have a mother at home, dying, and then to smile, was—Carla.

He met her at the door, and Carla had wet, fresh nasturtiums in her hand. A glow of greeting was in her eyes and the smile was on her lips, as he knew they would be. He helped her off with her coat and hood.

"I want to talk with you for only a few moments, if the inconvenience isn't too great," she said.

"And I want to talk with you—for a long time," he replied. "I am not working, not even dictating, and I have let my secretary go. I have felt peculiarly the desire to do nothing this afternoon. The day has been empty and blue, and it brightened only when I saw you coming down the path. I have been thinking about you—quite a bit."

He had never said as much as this, with the steely shutters let down from his eyes so that the other man within him was looking through. A flush so faint that Paul did not notice it gathered in Carla's cheeks.

"Thinking of me?" she inquired. "That is kind of you. I like to be thought about—pleasantly. And you could not think otherwise of me when I bring you flowers."

He was glad she had spoken about her flowers.

"They have been an encouragement and an inspiration to me for a long time," he said. "No matter how annoying my work or how gloomy the day, they are always like a cheering friend smiling at me from my desk."

"I am glad my flowers have seemed friendly to you. They are always that to me. I love them just as I love trees. If it were not that their crowning mission is to bring us comfort and solace, I should hate to pick them. Sometimes it seems to me like killing beautiful things with souls in them. I feel the same way when I see a tree cut down."

She Was In Europe Now. Last Year It Was Egypt. Next Year It Would Be Some Other Far-Away Place.

Her gaze rested upon the picture of his wife.

"I often think of Mrs. Kirke when I pick my nasturtiums," she added. "She is of their beauty, colorful, vivid, full of gold and life. Is she well?"

"I believe so. She is in Paris. I received a letter from her yesterday in which she speaks of you. She says she has not forgotten her threat to come up and paint you some day. That will be exciting, her third visit in three years."

She caught the inflection of irony in his voice, though he was not trying to reveal it. The knowledge of his loneliness sometimes oppressed her. It was one reason why she picked flowers for him. And she was always saying something nice for the woman whose picture was on his desk and whose life was so apart from his, so infinitely separated from everything in which he might have found happiness.

"I have tried to grow hyacinths about my cottage," she said. "But they won't live. They die. I love them and have given them every care, and I make myself believe they would like to grow for me if they could. I told Mrs. Kirke of my experience when she was here a year ago, and you should have seen her eyes light up. 'I am like that,' she said. 'I would die if I had to live up here. Paul doesn't understand. You won't. Yet—I would die'—and I believe that, too. It isn't her fault any more than it is the hyacinth's. They are very much alike. A wonderful flower—and a wonderful woman. I think your wife is the more wonderful of the two—giving you up as she is doing, all because of your work."

Early Church Literally Made House of Refuge

Days when the church was a refuge in time of danger from the foes of the flesh, rather than a spiritual sanctuary, are recalled by Dr. William Norman Guthrie in an article in the Churchman:

"The invasion of the barbarians in Spain and France," he writes, "broke the tradition for western Europe. The church was not, from the Eighth to the Twelfth century, a judgment hall of Christ, but rather a stronghold and a communal mart and assembly, and lastly a sanctuary for those who fled from what passed for feudal justice. The stern, dark Carolingian church still surviving at the core of Mont St. Mihiel was never meant for a pleasant, festive assembly place. If for worship and mystic salvation, it was primarily for bodily safety. Its massive walls, its stout barrel vault, bespeak the refuge in time of danger."—Detroit News.

CALLS IT PEACE WITHOUT VICTORY

Return of Hawkeyes Fails to Arouse Enthusiasm.

Characterized by the Daily Iowan, University of Iowa student newspaper, as "a peace without victory," the Western conference action in reinstating the Hawkeyes has failed to arouse much enthusiasm on the Old Gold campus.

There was obvious disappointment, which in some quarters merged into outspoken resentment, over the conference barring the way to further attempts by Iowa to seek reinstatement of eleven athletes. Hawkeye athletic officials who were openly jubilant when news of Iowa's reinstatement first reached the campus later refused to make statements when they learned that a plea to have the athletes restored to good standing would be turned down.

While athletes themselves all denied reports that they would leave Iowa, they were almost unanimous that the conference refusal to consider a reinstatement plea was unjust. Mike Farroh, three sport star and co-captain elect of the football team, said: "It is the greatest disappointment of my life. I am certain a rehearing should be given all of us. I had no idea we would be barred from further competition."

The boy's there, so you say when Babe Ruth hits a homer. Ditto for what you say when Charley Hyatt of Pittsburgh university shoots a goal in basketball. Ruth takes his cut and the ball goes places and Hyatt takes his shot and the ball snaps the laces.

Charles, who is captain and forward of the Pittsburgh team, has been overloading the big time box scores for three years. He recently hit his high mark by picking up 27 points in one game. Anybody who can do that in a major engagement must be good.

Hyatt did his high scoring act in a recent game against Montana State. It was his twelfth and last field goal that gave Pittsburgh their winning margin of one point.

Black-haired and boasting the build of a good, rugged halfback, Hyatt has remarkable endurance. And the pace never gets too hot for him.

In the University of Iowa corner of the wrestling ring has always sat a winner in the 145-pound class since Albert Montgomery set a precedent last year by winning in all of six dual meets. Allen Whitten of Bayard started out against the strong University of Oklahoma squad recently with a fall in two minutes to uphold the tradition. He is a junior.

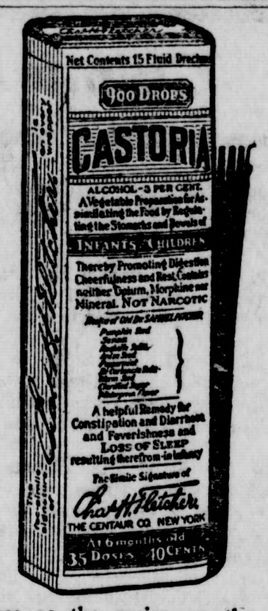
An Ailing CHILD



Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

Way to Happiness Simple says California Physician

After 28 Years' Practice Describes Natural Treatment which Keeps People Well

"AFTER over 28 years of the study and practice of medicine, during which time I have treated and supervised the treatment of almost every variety of human illness," writes Dr. Martin J. Dobson of Los Angeles, "I believe I have discovered the greatest blessing that has been bestowed upon the human family. Statistics show that of all classes of persons, physicians and nurses live to a riper old age than any other class of people. I believe this is no doubt due to the fact that they know more about the importance of daily elimination.

Dr. Dobson's Discovery

"The remedy I am speaking of is colorless, tasteless, harmless to the most delicate alimentary tract, from infancy to old age. It is non-habit-forming, and it is essential to the smooth running efficiency of the human body, which needs lubrication just like any other machine.

"This remedy is Nujol.

"Most human ailments can be traced to the alimentary tract for either the main or the contributing cause, and most of these disorders can be prevented or cured through proper cleansing and regulating by the administration of Nujol as per instructions on the bottle and wrapper, or as ordered by the physician or nurse."

Nujol Laboratories considers it a privilege to publish Dr. Dobson's endorsement of Nujol.

Physicians and nurses themselves use and advise you to use Nujol regularly to clean the poisons out of your body (we all have them), because these poisons are what make us feel headachy, depressed, low in our minds.

It is always safe to use Nujol, because it is not a medicine; it contains absolutely no drugs; it cannot hurt even the littlest baby; it forms no habit; it is non-fattening. Nujol is harmless internal lubrication.

What This Should Mean to You

In the last few weeks we have had over 5,000 letters from people all over the world, telling us how Nujol has helped them to happiness and success by keeping their bodies internally clean. You can buy Nujol in sealed packages at any drug store. It costs but a few cents, and it will make you feel like a million dollars.

Start Nujol tonight. Use it regularly for two weeks, and learn the joy and the happiness that comes from buoyant, zestful health!

The total weekly pay roll for the same representative establishments was $4,467,108 in January, 1929, and was $4,375,866 in January, 1930, a decrease of $91,242, or 2 per cent.

"EAST OF SUEZ" COMING TO THE GEARY THEATRE

The advent of the distinguished star, Leonore Ulrich, in a new starring vehicle is always a gala theatrical event, and one that arouses keen interest among theatregoers. When, in addition to this, the noted actress comes along with a play by the eminent English playwright, W. Somerset Maugham, an unusual eclat surrounds the occasion. At the Geary Theatre on Monday night, February 24, Miss Ulrich will make her first American appearance in Maugham's powerful drama, "East of Suez."

The fascinating spell of the Orient with its inherent destructive power when West attempts to meet East in too close an intimacy is revealed in the Maugham play. The scenes are laid in Pekin, China. Here the traditions that several young Oxford men have brought with them from far-off England begin to crumble as they come under the influence of an exotic and flaming Eurasian girl. This tempestuous creature, known as Daisy, struggling between her different racial instincts, raises havoc with men's hearts and souls and in the end revents to her true Oriental type.

Although Miss Ulrich has scored noticeable triumphs in such successes as "The Bird of Paradise," "The Harem," "Tiger Rose," "Kiki," and "Lulu Belle," it is said she has never in her career essayed a role that fits her talents and personality more perfectly than that of Daisy in "East of Suez." The famous star has been provided with a splendid supporting cast, including Lyland Hodgson, Reginald Sharland, Kenneth Treseder, Philip Sleeman, Virginia Bradford, Eily Maylon and John Deweese.

MEDDLERS DROP CASE

After five years of expensive meddling in an effort to find something wrong with the methods of newspapers and advertising agencies, the Federal Trade Commission recently gave up the task and dismissed its complaint against the publishers and agencies.

The utterly useless and futile proceeding cost the newspaper and advertising industry more than $100,000 and no one knows how much it cost the goverment. The Commission dismissed the case because after five years it decided that it had no jurisdiction in the matter to begin with.

In the opinion of the New York Sun the case was dismissed on account of a recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States that the Federal Trade Commission has no right to file a complaint against any one unless there is a special and substantial public interest involved in the matter at issue. The Sun further says:

"If the court has checked the Trade Commission's costly interference with business a lot of good has been done. The Commission has given some wonderful examples of the way to keep bureaucracy alive. Now it investigates the du Pont company's investments of surplus earnings. Again it subpoenas 700 witnesses to give their definition of castile soap. In the present instance we see thousands of dollars wasted, all for the preservation of bureaucracy."

It would be interesting to know whether in its 14 years of operation the Federal Trade Commission has ever performed a piece of work which did not cost more than it was worth to the public.

He: "Now that we are married, perhaps I might venture to point out a few of your little defects."

She: "Don't bother, dear, I am quite aware of them. It was those little defects that prevented me from getting a much better man than you are."—Portland Spotlight.

EXCEPTIONAL ARRAY OF SCREEN HITS AT DALY CITY THEATRE

The Daly City Theatre has booked for the last week of the month an exceptional array of screen hits. Attractions with some of the greatest names on the screen. For tomorrow, playing both matinee and evening performances, the Daly City will present the Warner Brothers' big all whoopee Vitaphone show, headed by Texas Guinan of "Hello, Sucker" fame, in "Queen of the Night Clubs," a big musical extravaganza with lots of stars and many delightful dancing and singing specialties. On the same bill there will be "The Devil's Appletree," a silent feature, a comedy and the News Service.

For Sunday, Joe E. Brown will hold down the star spot in "Painted Faces," a big thrill and throb show of footlight life, in which he is supported by Dorothy Gulliver, Helen Foster and many other feature players of note. Many other attractions will be on this same bill that promises to be one of the most entertaining Sunday attractions yet to be shown at this popular district house.

Eddie's Advershow will be the main attraction for Monday at the Daly City, where this ever popular young fellow is packing the house to the doors with his greatly augmented Advershow and professional vaudeville show. The feature film attraction for Monday will be Jeanne Eagles in "Jealousy," a Paramount sound picture play.

Tuesday and Wednesday will bring Frank Craven, the well known stage and screen star, in Radio Keith Orpheum's big, hilarious comedy special, "The Very Idea," said to be one of the funniest screen talking comedies ever presented.

For Thursday and Friday, Moran and Mack, of Two Black Crow fame, will appear in Paramount's all fun talking picture, "Why Bring That Up?" Evelyn Brent and Harry Green have important roles in this picture.

For Saturday, March 1, Clive Brook will be seen in the thriller "The Return of Sherlock Holmes."

THAT'S DIFFERENT

One day a very pretty young lady who had a poodle dog in her lap chanced to be riding on a street car. A bluenose lady sitting next to the girl addressed her thusly:

"My, what a nasty little dog. Don't you think, young lady, it would look much nicer if you had a baby in your lap?"

"No," the pretty one replied in calm, even tones, "it wouldn't. You see, I'm not married."—Exchange.

"Sir," said the maid, haughitly, "either take your arm from around my waist or keep it still. I'm no ukelele".—Selected.

"Mother," said little John, arrived home from church, "babies aren't as good as they used to be, are they?"

"Whatever makes you think that?" replied his mother.

"Well, little Willie can't talk yet, and he is nearly two, but Job could talk when he was a baby."

"Where does it tell you that dear?" said his mother.

"Don't you remember the lesson this morning, mother? It said that Job cursed the day he was born."

A new foreman who knew more about work than he did office reports wrote in:

"I'm sending in the accident report on Casey's foot when he struck it with the maul. Now, under 'Remarks,' do you want mine or do you want Casey's?"

Lady Politician: "What is home without a mother?"

Male Voice in the audience: "Your baby."

"Know how to find the horsepower of a car?"

"No."

"Easy! Lift up the hood and count the plugs."

Lump Coal, handpicked, for the fireplace and furnace.

"Why shouldn't houses be built of coal?" asks a bright correspondent. Why not indeed? They would at least be fireproof!

"Do you know," said the successful merchant, pompously, "that I began life as a barefoot boy?"

"Well," said the clerk, "I wasn't born with shoes on either."
